Making Waves (ISSN 1192-2427) is published quarterly by the Canadian Centre for Community Renewal (Port Alberni, B.C.) to discuss the principles and practice of economic development that is expressly geared to rebuild the hope, pride, and power of endangered or deteriorating communities.

Our readers and contributing writers are committed social entrepreneurs: managers, directors, co-ordinators, CEOs, economic development officers, chairpersons, consultants, planners, and other citizens determined to integrate economic, social, and environmental achievement. It is a magazine by and for community economic development (CED) professionals and activists.
